MEMORANDUM FOR: [redacted]

SUBJECT: 25X1A9a Overlays

REFERENCE: [redacted] Memorandum 474 dated 7 July 1958

Would you kindly transmit the following answers regarding corrections to the overlays: The original lines that are being removed are photographic images rather than India ink lines. These can be removed by 1) making the emulsion moist and rubbing with a soft pointed stick, 2) using a solvent such as you mentioned, 3) scratching off with an Exacto knife or razor blade. In using either of the first two methods the photographic emulsion is removed leaving a slick surface and India ink may not stick satisfactorily if applied to that area at a later date. If, however, there is no need to redraft in the same area, no problems should arise. In relation to the choice between India ink and pencil the choice can be left to the draftsman. If a soft pencil is used a line sufficently dark to reproduce by ozalid can be made. The old lines need not be removed if XXX'd out.

We have retained the master and will make changes as necessary from the ozalid corrections forwarded to us. If at any time the overlays become unusable due to action of solvents or clutter from a number of changes adjacent to each other corrected copy overlays can be requested from us.

There is no need to go to great pains for neatness alone as long as the data are accurate and readily legible as they need forward to us only an ozalid copy of their work overlay.
